MAKE TOMATO PLANT TRELLISES

To keep tomato plants off the ground and to give them support against wind and dry rain, the gardener will want a system of small trellises.

The trellis consists of two frames or small "ladders" with side rails of 1 by 2 by 4 inches. The "rungs" of one ladder are 17 1/2 inches long; those of the other are 18 1/2 inches long.

Holes for the rungs are 6 inches apart. The upper hole for the rungs is 1 inch from the top of the rail. Use a No. 8 auger bit to bore the holes.

Cut the 1/2-inch dowels to length and secure them in place with wood glue and brads.

Make two plans: 4-inch length of dowel to hold the frame together. Attach a piece of cord to each pin and fasten to outside rails with screw-wire.

Protect the cord with a good paint. The trellis will last many years. For storage, remove the pins and clean off the soil.

Diagram showing the construction of the tomato plant trellis. It consists of two vertical frames (ladders) with side rails and rungs. The rungs are 17 1/2 inches long, and the side rails are 18 1/2 inches long. The rungs are spaced 6 inches apart, with the top rung 1 inch from the top of the rail.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

WASHINGTON — The roll has been called for the last time and the adjournment motion carried. Congress has adjourned for another year. After working until the wee, small hours of the night, with frantic last minute business to take care of, unexpected committee meetings called, informal hurried hearings taking place, and the usual thousand of finishing-up details to be worked out, Capitol Hill has begun to take on an unusual quietness called "adjournment peace."

Much domestic legislative work remains to be done when Congress convenes next January. Some of these matters are the Federal — aid to Highway program which has been held up to how it should be financed; and the Federal-aid for School Construction is bogged down in both Senate and House Committees.

midtees. Social Security legislation was passed by the House late for the Senate to take any action on it. . . however, I have been asked by the Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee that hearings will be one of the first items on the agenda next year at which time a thorough study made in an effort to bring the Social Security law in line with present day needs. My amendment to increase the earnings limitation from $1200 to $1500 annually without causing Social Security recipients to lose any benefits will be included in this study.

Although the above and other matters were held over—still this session has accomplished a great deal. The "cold war" which was predicted between the President and Congress did not materialize. . . and to Lyndon Johnson, very fine and capable Senate Majority Leader, goes much credit for the turnout of this prediction. Senator Walter George, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is to be greatly commended for the part he played in easing world tensions. . . for it was he who was responsible for the meeting at the Summit. He deserves double credit in fact, for it was by his suggestion that the meeting with Red China is now taking place; and through this meeting, the wonderful news of the release of the 11 American flyers and the hope of the other Americans being released. Also in the Foreign Relations field, along with the Formosa Resolution and the Paris Pacts there were some 30 other treaties signed—all of which were designed to improve and strengthen our position throughout the world.

The budget for fiscal year 1956 stands at $2.2 billion dollars, and of this amount the largest appropriation is $1.9 billion for the department of defense. This is indeed a tremendous figure—but all agree that in our own self-interest until a practical program of disarmament has been worked out, and until we are certain that the communist leadership desires peace—we must continue to see that we have the best of military defenses and the most modern of military weapons. In the field of foreign aid, Congress passed legislation this session which would provide for a ready reserve program.

Switching to the domestic front, we have increased the minimum wage from 75c to $1.00, although this law applies only to those businesses which have been ruled to be interstate ones, and thusly under federal jurisdiction. Another wage increase was that of the basic compensation of Civil Service and postal employees. Foreign-aid was cut somewhat this year, but still about $7 billion were appropriated to help people in outlying countries around the world. I was happy to have more emphasis and attention given to the countries of Latin America in this Foreign-aid Bill, believing that closer ties and greater trade between the countries of this Western Hemisphere is strategically and economically our future salvation.

And so I could go on and on, but I do want to add that Florida benefited a great deal this session. In public works appropriations over $9 million will be spent on various projects this year. The Navy expenditure in our state for new construction alone is $23,513,700, and Air Force $35,936,000. Federal-aid to Airport legislation allows $81,856 available matching funds for the next four years for the construction of municipal airport and terminal facilities in Florida. These are but a few, as well as general legislation which affects everyone in the country.

Small Business

During the final hours of the session action was taken to extend the life of the Senate Small Business Administration for two years and the limit on its loans to individual firms was raised from $150,000 to $250,000. In addition, the revolving loan fund was increased from 150 million to 175 million dollars.

Civil Service Retirees

Prompt action was taken by Congress to increase annuities paid to Civil Service retirees. This legislation as passed provides that those Civil Service retirees on the rolls as of last June 30 would be given an increase of 12 per cent on the first $1500 and eight per cent over that amount up to a ceiling of $4,104. Though the bill was finally passed—and which was undoubtedly signed by the President—did not contain everything that I had hoped for, it was a satisfactory compromise and will afford some measure of needed relief for our Civil Service retirees.

This week I am planning a short vacation with my family in North Carolina, after which I shall be in Washington for a day or so to wind things up. Florida plans are not yet complete, except that I plan to be in Jacksonville this year.

My radio and TV programs for this week concern the highlights of the 1st Session of the 4th Congress being a discussion of the same with the Senate Minority Leader, William Knowland. I have also done an extra tape and film this week. As for television, it is a longer program than usual and therefore the time of broadcast will vary. In it I have tried to give a resume of this Session's accomplishments, and Florida's benefits. The radio program will no doubt be on your dial at the regular scheduled time.

I wish to thank all of you who have written in letting me know that you enjoy receiving my weekly Washington News Letter. The Newsletter will be published every other week during adjournment. If any of you know of others who would like to receive copies, just send me their names and addresses and I shall be happy to add them to my mailing list.

State Chamber Plans
Its Own Home Building
Plans for the new Florida State Chamber of Commerce building, which will cost approximately $450,000, will be completed around the middle of next week, by the offices of Saville and Powell, Jacksonville architects, Edward Ball, chairman of the building committee, said today in a letter to the organization's board of directors, according to Harold Cole, executive vice president. Architects have incorporated in the plans, under instruction of the building committee, Florida materials wherever same can be appropriately used, Cole stated. Because of the type of construction one of the biggest single items is concrete made with Florida cement approximately 650 cubic yards of concrete, he added.

FLORIDA LARGE USER OF FUEL OILS IN 1954

Floridians burned 37,350,000 barrels (of 42 gallons each) of fuel oils of all types last year. The most significant increase in the use of fuel, 1954 over 1953, was a gain of 66 per cent heating oils use in homes, offices and institutions. This increase (to 2,895,000 barrels) is attributed to a greater number of homes and buildings to heat as well as to the length of the season, the Florida State Chamber of Commerce commented. Total fuel oil use in Florida was eight per cent more in 1954 than in the previous year and 72 per cent above 1950. The nation showed a small decrease from 1953 and a 12 per cent gain over 1950.

Electric and gas plants, the largest users of fuel, burned 16,690,000 barrels, a nine per cent annual gain. Other consumers are listed in this week's business review of the State Chamber of Commerce industrial division. Railroads used 2,395,000 barrels, up three per cent; vessels and tankers 1,928,000 barrels, slightly off the previous total; manufacturing plants used 9,929,000 barrels, and the balance, 4,113,000 barrels, was used in trucks, dredges, sprays and by the military. Jet fuel, for both military and civilian use, came to 2,448,000 barrels and kerosene to 2,701,000, neither of these being included in the regular fuel oil total.

SALES TAX MONEY POURS INTO TREASURY

According to information released by Ray E. Green, State Comptroller, Sales and Use Tax Collections received by his office during the month of July totaled $5,935,009.53. This is over eight hundred thousand dollars more than was reported for the same month of 1954. Sales and Use Tax payments received during July from dealers in Palm Beach County amounted to $232,075.32.

It is believed that the first drive-in service station began operations in 1935, at the plant of the Automobile Gasoline Company, in St. Louis.
